

I believe that Amateur Radio is better served by requiring Morse code examination to obtain an Amateur Radio Operator's License. The technical theory examinations have become far too easy to pass. Mastering Morse code at least requires some effort on the part of the applicant.